Skills Integration Component. Each certificate recipient who does not select Estate Planning must complete a writing component demonstrating facility in researching and analyzing complex tax problems. The student may satisfy the requirement with a seminar, a two or more credit hour directed research project, or a law journal note. In addition, students who are interested in a clinical-type experience will have opportunities to complete a clinical project (including an externship). In some instances, the clinical experience, when accompanied by a significant, analytical research paper, brief or memorandum, may satisfy the capstone requirement as well. A member of the faculty who regularly teaches at least one of the Taxation Courses listed above must approve a student paper in order for the paper to fulfill the writing requirement.
